----------------------------	------------------------	---------

Exemptions

The following are exempted from payment:

- children under 2 years of age
- passenger boarding charge is not due for the continuation of an interrupted journey when the disruption is due to the aircraft being changed or to a circumstance beyond the passenger's control.
- domestic flights with a change of aircraft and flight number are subject to payment of the passenger charges at both the originating airport and the connecting airport; however, the fee is due only at the originating airport when the subsequent leg of the journey represents a continuation of the journey with departure on the first connecting flight
- airlines' crew members having their operating base at a given airport that must reach another airport for operational reasons (Crew Must Go); airlines' crew members that have terminated their service at a given airport and must go back to another airport assigned by the company as their operative base (Crew Returning to Base). Crew members need to hold a certificate issued by their airline stating that the journey is made for service duties.

Reductions

Boarding charges for children from 2 to 12 years of age: 50% of adult charge.

Diverted movements

In cases where a flight is diverted from the airport originally scheduled for departure to another airport, the charge set at the originally scheduled airport shall apply.

Freight charges

They are due from the Carrier, who may claim them back from the shipper.
